writerly identities in beur fiction and beyond explores the beur banlieue literary and cultural field from its beginnings in the 1980s to the present it examines a set of postcolonial bildungsroman novels by azouz begag farida belghoul le la sebbar sa d mohamed rachid dja dani and mohamed razane in these novels the central characters are authors who struggle to find self identity and a place in the world through writing and authorship the book thus explores the different ways all these novels relate the process of becoming to the process of writing neither is straightforward as the author characters struggle to put their lives into words settle upon a genre of writing and adopt an authorial persona each chapter of writerly identities in beur fiction and beyond focuses on a given author s own relationship to writing before assessing his or her use of the author character as a proxy in so doing the study as a whole explores a set of literary questions genre textual authority reception and engages them against the backdrop of socio cultural challenges facing contemporary french society these include debates on education cultural literacy diversity and equal opportunity and the banlieue environment finally it argues in relation to the authors and novels in question for the particular relevance of rooted and vernacular cosmopolitanism which suggests both that exploration of the world must begin at home and that stories are crucial for such explorations this book reconsiders authorship by the descendants of north african immigrants to france by consulting how these authors novels have been discussed and promoted in the national audio visual media in past forward french cinema and the post colonial heritage author dayna oscherwitz focuses on the world of french films with a new lens drawing upon a wealth of research and the examination of popular french movies oscherwitz offers fresh perspectives not only on the unique importance of motion pictures and their indelible influence on french character but on current debates regarding individual and collective memory past forward traces the development and ascension of the french heritage film those historical and costume dramas focusing on prestigious french subjects events and settings these motion pictures preeminent during a period of globalization and fear over the affects of immigration in 1980s france quickly came to embody a specific version of french national and collective identity one that idealized the past condemned the present and created an institutional form of memory oscherwitz presents the intriguing notion that french heritage films are not exclusively expressions of nationalism and nostalgia as has commonly been asserted on the contrary although these movies were born out of a perceived loss of french culture their ambivalence toward traditional hallmarks of nationalism opens them up to new interpretation also in contrast to typical conceptions the author suggests that these heritage films are far from cinematic bastions of multicultural backlash instead she argues popular culture has in its own fashion reinserted the history of colonialism and immigration into the national past thus reimagining heritage itself against this backdrop oscherwitz goes on to investigate the multicultural worlds of beur and banlieue movies cinema seemingly in direct contrast with the heritage film offering the theory that these films serve as a countermemory to an institutionalized one and provide alternative models of collective memory and identity through careful analysis of several examples oscherwitz demonstrates how these two seemingly different realms heritage and multicultural cinema are far from mutually exclusive in the construction of french identity throughout the volume numerous well known french movies are reexamined inviting new interpretations of and challenging old views through investigations of familiar cinematic works past forward is arevolutionary volume that boldly reimagines our ideas about french film and its role in communicating history and memory
